

Sacajawea State Park Interpretive Center

EDUCATION PROGRAMS

Get the most out of your expedition!

At the confluence of the Snake and Columbia Rivers, the Sacajawea Historical State Park Interpretive Center is perfect for hands-on learning and exploration. The Interpretive Center is open year-round for school field trips. The center features displays about the Lewis and Clark Journey and American Indian culture, traditions, and language.

Exhibits and Discussion Topics include:

- American Indian tools creation and use
- Traditions of the Seasonal Round and trade
- The life of Sacagawea, the Shoshoni woman who traveled with Lewis and Clark
- The Journey of the Corps of Discovery
- Ainsworth—A Railroad Town
- Confluence Story Circles by artist, Mya Lin

Lewis & Clark Traveling Trunk

Can't make it to the center?
Bring the field trip to your classroom.

The Lewis & Clark Traveling Trunk is packed with curated items and educational resources to bring history to life for your students. It can be checked out for two weeks to one month by school teachers and librarians for classroom use. It is designed for students grades 4 through 9 and includes:

- Replica artifacts for hands on learning
- Lesson plans and texts adaptable to meet students' learning goals
- Maps and images for display and instruction
- An in-person or virtual classroom visit by a Sacajawea Historical State Park Interpretive Ranger
